

About Teresa Kline

Lobbyist, California Medical Association

Teresa Kline is a lobbyist with the California Medical Association. She primarily handles public health issues for CMA's government relations and legislative advocacy efforts. Prior to coming to work for CMA nearly three years ago, Teresa was a long-time legislative staffer, having worked in the State Capitol for 13 years for various Assembly Members. She was most recently Chief of Staff for former Assembly Member Paul Koretz of West Hollywood. Teresa also worked for Kaiser Permanente Public Affairs in the Sacramento area as a Community and Government Relations representative. Teresa, her husband Jim, and their three children and two dogs live in Folsom.